

Creating a Culture of Partnership

Inspiring the shift from a transactional to a partnering culture

Do you feel your teams becoming siloed? Is information protected rather than shared? Are goals misaligned or not communicated well? Is an "Us versus them" logic underpinning relationships between teams and colleagues? These are all signposts signalling the need to build a culture of partnership.

Collaborative cultures of partnership create the ultimate conditions for value creation, at an individual, organisational and societal level. They require a shift from a transactional to partnering mindset; a commitment to new ways of working that create alignment and collective knowledge building and sharing; and a focus on building and leveraging networks of mutually engaging relationships.

This program area sows the seeds for a cultural shift that has a deep impact on the success and sustainability of the organisation as a whole.
