

Successful Project Teams

Working well together

Project teams can be made up of people from one organisation working on an internal project, or a mix of individuals managing a project that is external to their own organisation. In order to work effectively and generate the best outcomes, successful project teams need to develop what we call 'project team synergy'.

Synergy involves agreed upon benchmarks and ways of engaging. Teams must work together to define how they will communicate, handle conflict, make key decisions and celebrate their successes. This process is about defining productivity and success, embracing diversity and sharing values while creating a clear understanding in the team's mind of their purpose.

This program area explores concepts such as operational agreements, shared values, clarity of purpose, respect for diversity, role definition and a solution-focused mindset.*
